US Strikes Iran for Second Night; Iran Fires Missiles at US Bases Across the Gulf — Washington Post / Al Jazeera

~20h ago · Middle East / Conflict

US forces struck roughly 90 Iranian military targets along the Strait of Hormuz coastline on Thursday night — a follow-up to 80-plus strikes the night before — while Iran retaliated by firing missiles and drones at US military installations in Bahrain, Kuwait, and Qatar, effectively collapsing a fragile ceasefire and raising fears of broader regional war.

Congo Ebola Death Toll Hits 600 as Outbreak Spreads to New Provinces and Uganda — Al Jazeera / Washington Times

~18h ago · Africa / Health

At least 600 people have now died in the Democratic Republic of Congo's Ebola outbreak — the fastest-climbing death toll at any comparable point in outbreak history — with 1,759 confirmed cases now spreading beyond the initial northeastern zone into previously unaffected provinces and Uganda's capital Kampala; no approved vaccine exists for this Bundibugyo strain.

Oil Surges to Multi-Month Highs and Fed Rate-Hike Odds Jump to 70% as Iran War Rattles Markets — Bloomberg / Rio Times Online

~14h ago · Economy / Markets

Crude oil prices spiked to their highest level since spring as US-Iran fighting disrupted Strait of Hormuz shipping, while the 10-year US Treasury yield climbed to its highest since May; traders now price in roughly a 70% probability of a Federal Reserve rate hike at the September meeting — up from 58% the day before — as energy-driven inflation fears mount.
